Grahan et al., US patent no. 6,871,213 teaches of deleting the dynamic state information (cookies, session history, etc.) from the local memory when a shared session is over.

The claimed invention is allowable over the art of record in view of applicant's argument presented in the Remarks of the above amendment that the applied art fails to disclose the claimed invention because the applied art fails to disclose the limitations that the software on the portable device causes the host computing device to delete the records relating to the computing session when the computing session is done, wherein said records include cookies, histories and information in cache.
